

Every Michigan incorporated municipality—city or village regardless of its size—is eligible to get a share of federal rent subsidies and federal housing grants. This fact is emphasized by Governor G. Mennen Williams.

Furthermore, the governor feels that since Michigan taxpayers pay more to the U. S. treasury than they ever get back in federal spending, the Michigan community which does not "get its share" of public housing dollars will in effect be paying for something it does not receive.

Governor Williams told newspaper editors at an Associated Press meeting at the Higgins Lake conservation training school that Michigan could get as much as $500,000,000—a half billion dollars.

This startling announcement—so it seems to the Michigan Motor—prompted an inquiry into what it was all about. In brief, here is what we learned at the governors office:

A 1933 special session act of the legislature permits any incorporated municipality to set up a public housing authority. If the voters approve, the authority may issue bonds, build homes and rent them. So far the cities of Detroit, Hamtramck, Ecorse, Saginaw, Pontiac and Flint have gone into the housing business. Grand Rapids voters turned down the idea this summer.

Governor Williams in March asked the state legislature to vote a $2,000,000 bond issue as a revolving fund to help finance the city housing projects.

Because the state constitution forbids use of state money for internal improvements except in the case of highways airports and waterways, the idea was abandoned.

The governor would like to submit a constitutional amendment in 1950 to remove this prohibition for state aid in public housing. He also would like to see the 1933 act amended to include counties and townships as well as incorporated municipalities.

How does a municipal public housing authority operate? If its plans are approved by the federal housing administration (Raymond Foley is the U. S. administrator), the authority can apply for a federal advance of money. The authority pays this back to Uncle Sam when its tax-free bonds are issued and sold.

Ann Research At Ending Dispute

Ann Arbor—That old argument about whether outboard motor boats hurt fishing is going to be settled.

The University of Michigan is undertaking scientific tests this summer to solve the problem once and for all. The Outboard Boating Club of America, with a national membership composed entirely of outboard boating enthusiasts, is co-operating in the study.

The entire study will be conducted as scientifically as any made in a laboratory but it will still make any angler wish he were on hand for the experiments. Although there'll be a lot of apparatus in use and notebook after notebook of data taken, there'll also be a whole of a lot of fishing.

All in all it will be a field day for everyone—including the fish.

Six ponds at the Wolf Lake Hatchery, near Kalamazoo Michigan, made available by the State Department of Conservation, and a private lake near Ann Arbor are to be used for the experiments.

Directing the work will be Dr. Carl E. Legler, assistant professor of zoology and research associate in the laboratory of vertebrate biology at the University and Dr. Albert S. Hazzard, director of the Conservation Department's Institute for Fisheries Research, also located at the University. Five graduate students will aid in the study.

A determined number of breeding pairs of adult bluegills will be placed in two of the ponds. A determined number of breeding pairs of adult bass will be stocked in another pair of ponds. Known numbers of largemouth bass fry will be planted in a third pair of ponds.

All through the summer tests will be conducted. Outboard motor boats will be operated twice daily in only one of each of the three types of ponds. Study will then be made of fish behavior and nesting in four of the ponds and survival in all six ponds.

At summer's end, comparisons will be made. By comparing the state and stock of the ponds in which motors were run to those in which no motors were operated, fundamental solutions to the problem of outboards versus fish will be reached.

The private lake at Ann Arbor will be used to determine whether outboards frighten fish and affect fishing success.

Three men of a four-man team will systematically still-fish and bait-cast the same stretch of water for a total of six hours per day. The third man will run an outboard motor past the fishermen on alternate days at regular intervals.

How much is all this going to cost the federal taxpayer? Quoting Foley, "The maximum possible total, with $10,000,000, comes to around $12,000,000,000—12 billion dollars." The rent subsidies are estimated by Foley to come to around 7 billion dollars, spread over 30 to 40 years.

Who pays the cost of running the local housing authority? The administrative overhead is covered by money obtained from bonds and rentals.

How much can Michigan get of the federal housing aid? Not more than 10 per cent may go into any one state.

Farm housing benefits are also available. In fact, submarginal farms (those which are not self-supporting) may obtain an outright gift from the Great White Father. A fourth of a billion dollars has been set aside for housing loans to farmers who cannot get private loans.

In 1929 the Federal Government spent $1.3 billion on goods and services; $5.2 billion in 1939; $21 billion in 1948, and an estimated $24 billion in 1949. The 1950 spending will be close to $30 billion with treasury cash deficit of $5 to $8 billion.

Pasture Tour Set For August 24

Farmers in this County will not want to miss this tour. The Antrim Soil conservation district along with the County Agricultural Agent in Antrim County has been planning the lay out for this pasture tour in Antrim for over a year.

There is no doubt but that pastures are one of the main outstanding problems we now have on the farms.

In Antrim County through the co-operation of the extension service and the soil conservation service some fine work has been done on developing low land as well as highland pastures. Two extensive plantings on up land soil has been made by using several grasses not common to the area. On this tour you will see, Birdsfoot Trefoil, Alta Fescue, Lodon Cover, Orchard Grass, Reed Canary Grass, White Dutch Clover and others.

Watch this column for more information about the tour such as when and where it will start.

There will also be a chicken dinner put on by one of the Granges. The people preparing this dinner want to know how many to expect so if you are going will you fill out the slip below and send it in to the County Agents office in Kalamazoo.

I am planning on going on the pasture tour, August 24th.

National Guard Plans Greatest Mobilization

Air Guard Schedule Field Training Review

Well embarked upon their first week of field training, Michigan's citizen-airmen, encamped 1,000 strong at Grayling Air Base, are preparing for their traditional full-dress review on Sunday and the advent of regular Air Force conducted readiness tests the following day, according to Lt. Col. Donald W. Armstrong, commander, 127th Fighter Group.

Against a background of some 50 aircraft the officers and men of Detroit's 127th Fighter Group Headquarters, 171st Fighter Squadron, 127th Aircraft Control and Warning Squadron, and Battle Creek's 172nd Fighter Squadron will pass in review before top military figures. On the stand to take the salute of the airmen will be Maj. Gen. Ralph A. Loveland, Commanding General, Michigan National Guard, Brig. Gen. George C. Moran, the Adjutant General, Brig. Gen. Frank Allen, Chicago, Commanding General, 66th Fighter Wing, Col. Frederic R. Anderson, retired, Commander of Michigan's pre-war 107th Observation Squadron, and regular Air Force observers.

Air Force teams will be at the Grayling Air Base from August 8 through August 12 to conduct the Operational readiness tests. The tests will determine the Air Guard's ability to keep its tactical aircraft in the air under simulated combat conditions for a minimum period of at least 48 hours. Results of the tests are expected to reveal the training accomplishments of the past year and training needs for the coming year.

Despite bad weather during the first days of field training, fighter pilots flew the first of their minimum of 17 missions. Each pilot is scheduled to fly at least four air-to-air gunnery missions, five air-to-ground gunnery missions, four "skit-bombing" missions with 100 pound practice bombs, and four rocket firing missions.

Michigan's 107th Bomb Squadron, based at Camp Williams, Wisconsin, for its 1949 field training is flying bombing and other missions with the other bomb squadrons in the 66th Wing. Detroit's 127th Aircraft Control and Warning Squadron is joining the fighter units in radar control missions.

Implementing the co-ordination and unification of the states armed forces, Lt. (JG) George E. Hillard, Kalamazoo, is participating in the Air Guard's field training at Grayling as an observer for the air arm of the Michigan Naval Force.

Group Meets At Riverside

The grand opening of Cunningham's AuSable Riverside's new lodge has taken place sooner than expected as the Covenant Mission decided they could not wait any longer to hold their annual festival. So 74 members arrived at Riverside on Friday and stayed until Sunday afternoon.

At the new lodge at McMaisters Bridge, all the cabins were used, tents were put up and the second floor of the new lodge were all used for sleeping quarters.

On Saturday there were canoe races, baseball and horseshoes and in the evening Ralph Peterson showed movies taken last year when the group was at Riverside. The pictures showed a pile of logs where the Sunday service was held last year. These same logs, having been sawed into lumber were made into the new lodge. Services this year were held on the banks of the river. Their song service caught the attention of passers by until there were dozens of cars parked near the bridge to listen to the singing.

Mrs. Ada Coon of Houghton Lake was engaged as cook for this 3 day outing and the food she served was delicious.

The name of this branch of the Covenant Mission of Calvary is "When Life Begins" and was sponsored by the Christian Men's Committee of Grand Rapids, however, some attending were from as far away as California and Florida.

Mrs. Cunningham was presented with a beautiful bottle glass stove. Everyone had a happy time.

Miss May White.

Circus Arrives Here Tomorrow

Most versatile of the acts forming the twenty displays of the Ayres & Kathryn Davies Wild Animal Circus which arrives here tomorrow is the famous Frazier Troupe. Jack Frazier, Sr., presents an unusual comedy balancing act risking his neck perched on top of a tier of chairs and tables. Lucille and Jack, Jr., juggle everything from a toothpick to a cannonball. Johnny Frazer will thrill an audience with his swift and rapid execution of feats on the tight wire. He finishes his act with a leap from the wire in and out of a twelve inch hoop to and from the wire and back again. The family are also expert clowns and acrobats.

This amazing troupe forms only a small part of the thrilling program which includes Captain Christy's Trained Jungle Bred African Lions, Pringle's Animal Actors, Corky and his clowns, lovely Betty Tilton aerial ballerina, and a dozen other features. The circus will arrive on its fleet of trucks and erect its acre of tents on the City Park Field for performances in the afternoon and evening.

The show is sponsored here by the Grayling Chamber of Commerce and Kiwanis Club. Tickets bought before the show arrives give a larger share to the two local organizations. People are urged to get tickets today.

Tickets for the two performances which are scheduled for 2 and 8 P. M., are on sale at Baringer's Mens Shop, Mac's Drug Store, Burns Hardware or the Avalanche. The price—50c for children up to 12 and 90c for adults.

Indies Defeat Roscommon, 14-7

The Grayling Independents handily defeated the Roscommon Shamrocks in a North Central Michigan Baseball League contest at the City Park here Sunday by a 14 to 7 score. Grayling laced out 16 hits to the Shamrocks 9 while each team was charged with 5 errors.

Bob Gildner started on the mound for Grayling and was replaced in the sixth inning by left-hander Max Niederer. Ross Thompson was behind the plate. Roscommon used Knapp and Haight on the pitching slab with Ballou catching.

Gildner struck out 5 Shamrock hitters while Niederer whiffed six. Gildner allowed four walks and Niederer one. Bob Horning with 3 hits in 5 attempts and Leo Granger with 2 hits in 3 times at the plate led the locals scoring drive. Niederer hit safely twice in four appearances as did Thompson who collected a double in the eighth inning. Bernie Sadjak and George Hanson each hit safely twice in five times at the plate. One of Hanson's hits was a double in the fifth inning. Clyde Anthony, Gildner and Elmer Kellogg each added a hit to the total.

Grayling poured six runs home in the first inning and followed with 2 more in the next inning. After two scoreless innings they pushed over two more in the fifth and another in the seventh and a final 3 in the eighth. Roscommon was held scoreless until the fifth inning when they rang up 3 and were again held scoreless for three more innings and then added a final 4 in the last inning.

Comins is scheduled to move into Grayling this Sunday afternoon in the final game of the League lineup for this season. Grayling has played eight league games so far with a record of 7 wins and one defeat which came at the hands of Comins there on June 19. The Grayling at Fairview game there on July 24 was rained out and may yet be made up. League playoff games are set for this month also.

Farrell, executive secretary to Governor Williams; Dr. Robert F. Steadman, Controller, Department of Administration; Gen. S. J. Chamberlin, commanding general, Fifth Army; Maj. Gen. Treated For Self-Inflicted Wound

John A. Franklin, 33, of Grayling received treatment at Grayling Mercy Hospital this week for a gun wound in his left side. According to Sheriff William A. Golinick, who investigated, the wound was self-inflicted with a 12 gauge shotgun.

The shooting occurred about 6 o'clock Sunday morning in the backyard of the Franklin home. Sheriff Golinick said Franklin shot himself as the result of family differences. Franklin is a mechanic at a local automobile garage.

City To Build New Sidewalks

City Manager Max Davenport announces that a small amount of money has been set aside by the city to construct some new sidewalks in the city during the next few weeks.

Those interested should turn in a petition which must include all property owners in a block on one side of the street. Residents must pay for one half of the construction which Manager Davenport estimates will cost at least $1 per foot, of which the city will pay one half.

Several petitions are now on hand, he said, but due to their being three or four years old and that some of the signers have either sold their property or moved away it would be better to have new ones turned in.

Kiwanis Club Notes

Burton Hunt of Florida who is working with the Michigan Fisheries Institute for the summer was the speaker at the regular weekly meeting of the Kiwanis Club of Grayling Monday evening.

Mr. Hunt was introduced by Russell Allen who was in charge of the program. Mr. Hunt who with his family is making his home in Grayling for the summer spoke on the insect life on which the trout feed. He particularly dwelt for the most part on the May fly, better known in this area as "caddis" fly.

Monopoly At Its Worst

Many years ago Congress passed a series of anti-trust laws to prevent monopolies and combinations in restraint of trade in this country. These laws apply to industry and finance alone. They pointedly exempt labor organizations. Yet, at this time, certain labor leaders and labor unions are wielding power to an extent which was never dreamed of by the "robber barons" of the last century.

One of the most startling examples of this is found in John L. Lewis' order to the United Mine Workers, which he controls lock, stock and barrel, to close down the coal mines of the United States for a period of a week. It was claimed that this was not a strike in the ordinary meaning of the term, that coal stocks above ground were at a high level, and that a brief shutdown would not seriously affect the industries of the nation. But these excuses are entirely beside the point. If Mr. Lewis can close down a vital industry at his whim for one week or one day or one minute he could by the same kind of dictatorial action close it down indefinitely. He could cause a breakdown in such essential industries as the railroads, the electrical utilities, and steel, which cannot function without coal. He could tie up ships carrying coal under the Marshall Plan to other lands, and thus undermine a foreign policy which has been approved by the President and Congress. Could we have a more glaring example of absolute monopolistic power than this?

It makes no sense to criticize Mr. Lewis for what he has done in the past or what he may do in the future. The real fault lies in laws which do not recognize that industry-wide bargaining creates as serious a monopoly as this country has ever faced. So long as this kind of bargaining is permitted, one union, dominated by one man, can tell the nation whether or not it shall have a commodity it cannot do without.

Yup, them's silver dollars, pardner, $58,179 of them. They're a feature of the 50th Anniversary celebration of The Timken Roller Bearing Company, Canton, Ohio.

About 8,000 of the silver dollars had to be left in bags, because the 12-cubic-foot lucite box made especially for the display won't hold that much hard money.

In the photograph above, two Timken employees, Louise Kessler, left, and Audrey Roth are amazed at the size of the pile. The exhibit is in the courtyard of the main entrance to the Canton plants of the Timken Company.

The large pile of cartwheels, weighing approximately 3500 pounds, represents the amount Timken and its employees hand out in federal income taxes daily. The Cleveland and Pittsburgh Federal Reserve Banks required several weeks to corral them for the First National Bank of Canton, which had the job of ordering them for Timken.

Ma Lost The Key

By SHIRLEY RAY

"DEAR MA and Pa, Jeff and I have gone to the city to be married. Ma, you just will never see things our way so this is all there's left for us to do. I'm sorry, (signed) Jennie."

From behind the barn Hiram could see the ancient auto rattling toward home. Elvira's gaunt figure at the steering wheel was silhouetted against the white road, and Hiram smiled to himself at the picture of his very large wife in the very small car. As it pulled into the driveway he quickly ducked out of sight. Better to have her discover the note herself. Reluctantly he went into the house himself.

She wheeled upon him sharply, her whole figure trembling with rage and astonishment.

"Hiram! Have you seen this?" she demanded.

"Do you realize what this means? Jennie—she's gone! Jennie's gone, Hiram!" She waved the note wildly in his face.

SHE stormed at the little man furiously. "They have no right to marry! He'll never be able to support her; his own father said he'd never make a farmer. All this talk about his wanting to study engineering and such nonsense—I won't have my daughter be his wife!"

"Now, listen, Elvira," he said boldly, "you're just carrying on so because Jennie's outwitted you! This would never have happened if you hadn't been so stubborn and would have consented to their marrying in the first place. If there's anything you women can't stand it's to have another woman out-do you—even if she is your own daughter!"

She read the note over again. "Jennie says they're leaving for the city. That must mean the 11:15 train. It's just eleven now; if we hurry we can catch her." Under her breath she added to herself, "So she thinks she can outwit me!" and drawing her lips into a hard, thin line, she grimly barged out the door. Hiram followed.

She opened the squeaky garage doors with an effort, and they went inside. He pulled away on his pipe as she fumbled in her huge handbag.

"Hiram, have you the car key?"

"No, Elvira, I ain't seen it all day."

She dashed out the door and he followed with a flashlight. They searched the driveway. They overturned flagstones and ran their fingers over short blades of grass. But there was no key. They went into the house and turned everything upside down. But no key.

"HIRAM," she exclaimed suddenly, "you sat in that rocking chair when you came in. What did you do with my things?"

"Why, I set them on the table there."

"Yes you did!" she accused. "You set everything there but the car key. Don't try to lie to me now, Hiram! I know very well you'd like to see her get away, but I won't have it! Hiram, if you got that key..."

"Elvira, I swear to goodness, I ain't seen it."

"The train leaves in two minutes," she wailed as she glanced at the clock. Her spirit was entirely broken. Her great frame even seemed to sag.

Hiram patted her benevolently. "Well, you go to bed now, Elvira, and have a good cry. Crying always does do women folk good. I'll be along in a while."

He walked onto the porch. The air was sweet with the smell of hay. Far in the distance he heard the melancholy whistle of a train, then all was quiet again. He puffed contentedly for a while on his corn-cob, then took it from his mouth and knocked the bowl against the railing. There was a bright flash and a small clink of metal as the ashes fluttered to the ground. Hiram smiled slyly to himself, pocketed the battered old pipe and started in. Released by WNU features

Dear Editor:

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor:

I enclose a little bit of California in this letter to renew my subscription.

The California missions are the states most historic landmarks.
They mark the beginning of white civilization on the Pacific Coast of North America. The missions were built by Indian labor under the direction and close supervision of the sainted fathers, with some assistance of Spanish soldiers. Architecture is Spanish in style, and follows a common pattern. They were located or placed at suitable points, each about 26 miles from the mission nearest it on the north or south, so that a foot party starting north from San Diego at dawn could camp each night at the next nearest mission.

Public spirited citizens, among them William Randolph Hearst, the publisher, have contributed funds for the mission's restoration from time to time and most all of them now are in a good state of preservation. Many are being used.

The date, 1799, on the front of the enclosed postcard, is likely correct for the erection date of this particular mission. Of course, San Gabriel is more than 100 miles north of San Diego.

California began at San Diego and I believe the first California civilization began at San Diego mission was built at or near San Diego in 1771. That precedes our Revolutionary War.

Last week we spoke briefly of the early pine timber-cruiser, the importance of his job and the great value placed upon his integrity. This is about another Cruiser or Timber-looker, who's stomping grounds was the Cadillac Highlands, sometimes called the "Michigan Hog Back" or the "Hardwood Belt." He was in search of that freak of the (census acer) the Bird's Eye Maple. Because it was worth a fortune on the stump, because of its beauty and its rarity, the Michigan hardwood belt rang with the axe long before the ordinary hardwoods were worth logging, and men trekked far inland with packs on their backs and sharp axes in their hands to identify and mark this mystery tree for future cutting.

The Antrim Iron Co., of Antrim, and the Michigan Cadillac were among the first to manufacture the hardwoods in a big way, and the chances are that any pieces of Bird's Eye you can find today came through their mills. If you have never seen the strong white wood with the little birds eyes looking at you from an old time table, desk, bar counter, or even an old-fashioned bedstead, and you happen to be someone who appreciates something rare, you've been missing something. It's about as rare as jade, but there's still a few pieces kicking around. Look in granddad's house. If he happens to be an old-time logger he may even have a Bird's Eye room.

Bunyanistic size were told about how the little bird's eyes got in the skins. Artists drew scrolls of the maple saplings being bombarded with meteor-like bodies from another planet indenting the saplings so deeply that the pits would never heal, even though the trees grew to giant size while others theorized about a mythical bird of by-gone ages marking the trees as their own and setting them apart as regal kings of the forest, which everyone admitted they were. Today most references dub them simply the Rock, or Curly Maple, but they should mean much more than that to any Michigan logger. It has been said that looking back with a little curiosity and pride helps us to look ahead with more interest and confidence.
